Description: Whitney Ballen has been a spectator of the teenagers and young adults that surround her for the past 19 years. She has collected thoughts, phrases, memories, and ideas of relationships inside of her head and spilled them out onto paper. But all of these things accidentally melt onto paper in what it looks to be; fine lines of body parts, honest words, and water-colored fields of space. She likes to capture intimate and personal ideas that each and everyone possess, into her work, some but very few her own.
